A time to reflect . . . a few moments spent alone pondering the work of the creator before hurrying back to understand the "why".

A time to grasp the greatness in the simple things which we hurridly pass by . . .

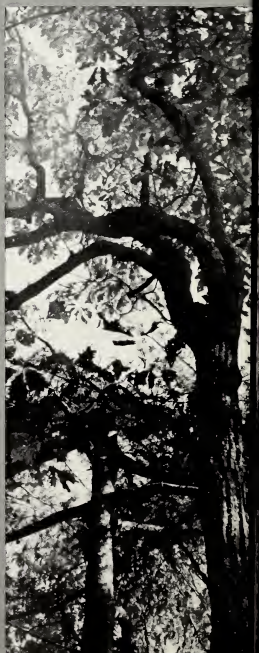
Unnoticed



There is a richness surrounding us which only our unopened eyes keep us from gaining.

Only when we are made aware that His directing our lives has brought us together, in all our uniqueness, can we enjoy
Him and each other,

Once understood, activities, studying and recreation become a means of response in our relationship to our sustainer.

This response must be a concentrated effort to be carried forth in every facet of life . . .

strengthened with all might according to His glorious power unto all patience and longsuffering with joyfulness, giving thanks unto the Father.

Soccer

Soccer is rough. Kicked shins and banged up knees, foggy visibility and a marshy field, long afternoon runs of several miles which bring back thoughts of training camp: all are a part of Convenant soccer. Included also must be the continuing desire to play caliber teams and reach big goals in accomplishment. Several nationally ranked teams on the schedule and post season national tournaments are a witness to this fact.

Soccer is tough.

Yet soccer is taking on a new look at Covenant. A new style of play, characterized by finesse and well-placed passes has turned Covenant away from having both a defense and an offense to having eleven players all contributing their skills on their sections of the field.

Cross Country

You have to admire someone who makes sport out of running a five-mile rugged cross country course. It involves everyday running under pressure trying to gain a few seconds here and there, working on turning your body into a well-oiled machine indifferent to shinsplints and burning sensations of both stomach and mind. Unity describes this year's team which seems to be well-bonded in a concentrated effort of a group of six individuals.

What's a better way to introduce women's volleyball to Covenant than to give it the championship crown of the conference. The team, led by Coach Will Stern, was dedicated from the start of the season. A spirit of optimism and confidence characterized the team all season long as it was being backed by both good play and a solid team effort.

Women's volleyball was an enjoyable event to attend as the ever exuberant crowd kept excitement flowing, giving encouragement to a well-responding team.

Women's Basketball

Women's basketball is not new to Covenant this year, but regulation uniforms, tennis shoes, and Coach Will Stern are. Although inexperience plagues the team, energy, spirit, a dedicated desire to improve, and special "cottenpick" plays make the difference. For a first-year varsity team, they do well, and with added height planned for next year, the team has a very bright future.

A unity both on and off the court was the stress of this years team. They were off to a good start by winning the invitational tournament and they looked strong. But the team had its ups and downs which resulted in an even season. The disappointment of the season was the dismal record within the league, yet there were still bright points and exciting ballgames. With only one player graduating, next years team has the experience needed to make next season well-worth looking forward to.

The pipes of Covenant . . .
An occasional reminder of the legacy of the Covenanters of Scotland . . . A legacy that includes the bloody and turbulent founding of the Reformed Presbyterian Church . . .

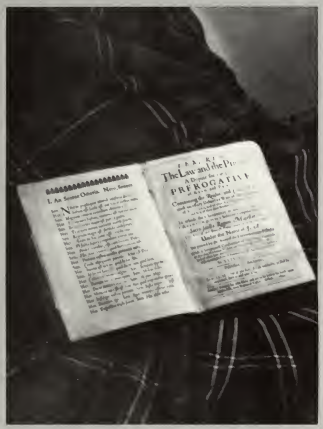
From the signing of the National Covenant in 1638 . . . Hence the name "Covenanter" . . .

Signing the Covenant, in the Greyfriars Churchyard, Edinburgh.

. . . through the horrible persecution remembered as the "killing times" . . .

. . . More than 18,000 Covenanters were martyred for their faith. Their cause? It was more than an ecclesiastical squabble . . . They determined that an arbitrary English king would not usurp the position that Christ occupied as Head of the Church in Scotland.

Those trying years of persecution called for great men "to stand before kings" . . . Men whose lives had far-reaching and lasting consequences.



Samuel Rutherford was one such man . . . His LEX REX embodied principles, such as separation of powers, which were later mainfested in our Constitution . . .

We need to know of these godly Scots who ". . . with the toil of their today, bought for us tomorrow."

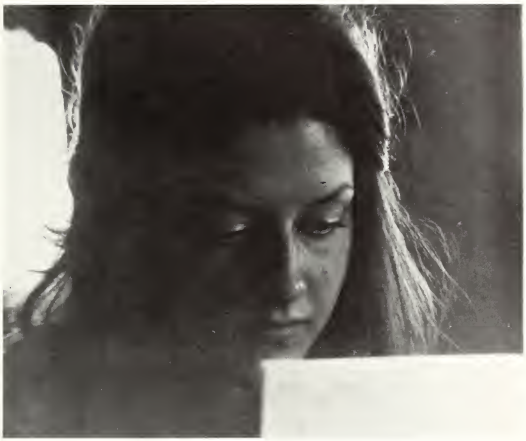
The cast came with reservations. They worried about the quality, the message, and especially their portrayal of the play. They wanted to present it as a gift to us, the students, and as an expression of praise to God.

The gift was well appreciated, the audience being well-entertained with both laughter and precise acting. The cast left with a sense of satisfaction for the contented audience, a task well done, and especially for new friendships developed in the course.

It's an effort by everyone working together trying to help defray the operational costs of the school. Amidst all the sweated brows and paint-splattered clothes can be found smiling faces, sounds of laughter, and work being accomplished in a relaxed atmosphere.

Grub Day



ELAN

He didn't come to be a crowd pleaser, though the overflow crowd was ready to be pleased. James Ward surprised most with his refreshing Elan. The music was clean and innovative, but most of all, it was pure music.

Student Council

Two semesters and one summer ago, our predecessors brought forth on this Mountain a new constitution that provided for a Student Activities Board. The purpose of the Board was to free the Senate from the burdens of monitoring student activities on campus.

After stumbling through its first year of existence, the Board discovered that, in spite of its organizational lack of confidence, the separation of the Board from the Senate is a good idea that is rich with promise. All it needs is students who are interested in taking the initiative in order to minister to the morale of the students of Covenant College.

To the students who we have attempted to serve, good Providence in the following years and take the initiative, knowing that our Lord will honor the godly activity of those who seek to do everything heartily as unto Him.

Halloween Party

Ghosties, ghoulies, and goblins were mixed with angels and multi-colored caricatures; faces once known, now unknown. It was a time when some returned to the memories of their childhood while others remembered the significance behind the day. Involvement by all, in one form or another, characterized the eventful evening.

Social Committee

The Social Committee this year attempted to provide an atmosphere in which the students could relax but would at the same time allow the individual to integrate into the activity of his choosing. This was our guide in planning the activities and presented challenges for some to synthesize the two.

The activities ranged from parties to roller skating, from movies to special dinners, from concerts to banquets with live entertainment and by live theatre.

In it all we were thankful to have had the chance to do it differently, and hopefully better.

Student Senate

The efficiency and operation of this year's Student Senate was made easier by a new system of student government that had been drawn up by last year's Student Council. That Council decided to write a new constitution and divided student government into two substructures. The social activities, cultural affairs, and other related responsibilities became the responsibility of the Student Activities Board. The responsibilities of the Student Senate became solely governmental and organizational. It is also political in that it seeks to be a voice of the students by representation on administrative and institutional committees.

The power of the Senate lies only in that it is a voice and thus it has been the goal of this year's Senate to be constantly aware of student concerns and to articulate them clearly. The Student Senate does not have any legislative power in the over-all operation of the college; its job is to raise questions and represent student opinion.

Film Committee

The Film Committee sponsors a short film festival in the fall and selects 7 or 8 full length films to bring at various times throughout the fall and spring semesters. Films are sought which exhibit good film techniques in a variety of themes. Through viewing selected films, participating in post-film discussions, and reading previews and/or reviews about each film in the BAGPIPE, the student body should be helped in their development of a Christian perspective of film, an art not dealt with by the fine arts committee.

Cultural Affairs

Cultural Affairs activities are coordinated either by the Fine Arts Committee or the Film Committee, both of which are under a chairman who is a member of the Student Activities Board.

The Fine Arts Committee seeks to encourage the student body in developing a view of what constitutes fine art in the areas of music, art, photography, poetry, and drama. The committee hopes that the student body will grow in their understanding of how a Christian should appreciate and utilize the fine arts. Under these directives the committee plans a fine arts festival in the fall and a larger one in the spring.

Christian Service Council

Christian Service Council is an organization designed to provide means and opportunities for serving God in reaching out to others in the Chattanooga-Lookout Mountain community. At Covenant College it is easy to become isolated from people who need to become reconciled to God. Lack of transportation and money often make it even more difficult to get involved with people outside the Covenant College community. Christian Service Council exists in order to make it possible for students to share their faith in God. What we really are doing is sharing Jesus, the One Who loved us and died for us and Who now is the energizing person within us. The people in the picture are a part of the people who were involved in Christian Service Council sponsored or aided activities this year.

Resident Assistants

The Resident Assistants are a catalyst or spark in bringing about social interaction and endeavor to nurture fellowship between students that they come in contact with. They try to provide unity for students who see each other every day but don't really know each other. The German Police Dog attitude may seem to be an objective for them, and it may be a valid accusation, but R.A.'s are there for guidance and counseling at a time when one may really need it.

On the practical level, R.A. Chapels and hall get-togethers are geared for an interaction that would not normally occur. There are once-a-week and bi-annual orientation meetings when problems concerning the objectives are discussed and the views of the students are voiced to those representing the administration.

WGOW — Faculty Basketball Game

The faculty team came minus Too-Tall-Henry, but the team played well due to the inspiring play of Hooking Hurley, Hustling Hekman, Rushing Rulon, Charging Chuck, and Bombing Belinda.

A hustling effort and the effective use of the Bowman and Fitzgerald combination kept the game close down to the closing seconds. The fans were on their feet several times during the Covenant comeback. The game, a 4-point loss, was entertaining to fans and players alike.

Senate sponsors special speakers

By ANDREW BELZ

The recently formed Student Senate of Covenant College will be responsible for bringing three high-calibre speakers to the campus during the fall semester, according to President Mike Cromartie.

Chapel speaker on Tuesday, September 16 was Stuart Briscoe from Milwaukee, Wisconsin. Briscoe was a week-long visitor at a local church in the Chattanooga area.

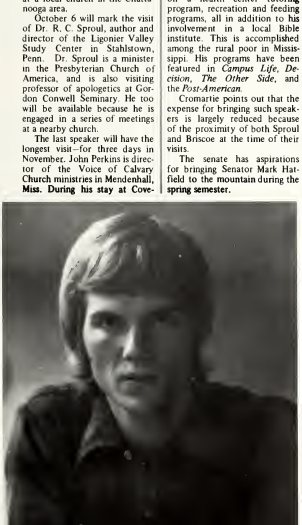
October 6 will mark the visit of Dr. R. C. Sproul, author and director of the Ligonier Valley Study Center in Stahlstown, Penn. Dr. Sproul is a minister in the Presbyterian Church of America, and is also visiting professor of apologetics at Gordon Conwell Seminary. He too will be available because he is engaged in a series of meetings at a nearby church.

The last speaker will have the longest visit—for three days in November. John Perkins is director of the Voice of Calvary Church ministries in Mendenhall, Miss. During his stay at Covenant on November 5, 6, and 7 he will conduct lobby discussions in addition to speaking in the regular chapel. "One of the reasons Mr. Perkins is coming," says Cromartie, "is that he can give us practical advice on how to conduct a ministry to the total community. He will encourage us to put flesh on our learning."

Perkins has initiated work on a health center tutoring program, recreation and feeding programs, all in addition to his involvement in a local Bible institute. This is accomplished among the rural poor in Mississippi. His programs have been featured in Campus Life, Decision, The Other Side, and the Post-American.

Cromartie points out that the expense for bringing such speakers is largely reduced because of the proximity of both Sproul and Briscoe at the time of their visits.

The senate has aspirations for bringing Senator Mark Hatfield to the mountain during the spring semester.



FINALLY—A CONCERT BAND

By RICHARD SAMS

This school year, Covenant will be entertained by a concert band directed by Mr. Craig Parker, a member of the music department. The band is being offered as a course for the first time in the history of the college.

The band is composed of forty players, all of whom are excited by upcoming performances. There is still a vital need, however, for players in the areas of the clarinet, saxophone and French horn. Any interested student should see Mr. Parker. He commented that he is "pleased with the response to the course. There are more students involved than I expected, and I am pleased with the musical results. As the months go by, I can see that the band has good potential." Mr. Parker added that he would eventually like to have the band involved in the college community, suggesting that an educational concert at area schools would be enjoyable and beneficial to younger students. The band may even perform at the Fall or Spring Festival of Lookout Mountain.

The first concert will be performed this Friday night at the College For A Day assembly. On Saturday, November 1, the Fall Band Concert will be held with Covenant's own band performing such greats as "Toccata for Bands," the movie theme from "Brian's Song," and selections from the movie musical, "Fiddler on the Roof."

Covenant students should be involved in these upcoming concerts. They are sure to be entertaining while at the same time students have opportunity to give the band full support.

Drama Workshop announces new season

By SUZANNE WATSON

Things are taking shape in the Drama Club this year. The officers, Mark Mollenkof, president, Ruth Campbell, vice-president, Kathy Mostrom, secretary, and Nancy Mussler, treasurer, have already held several meetings with last year's members and interested students.

Two plays have been chosen for this semester. The Madwoman of Chaliot, a delightful comedy by Jean Giraudoux, will be performed on the consecutive evenings of November 13th, 14th, and 15th, in the Great Hall at 8 p.m. Jeannie Hastings will direct. The second production, Waiting For Godot, is an existential play written by Beckett, and will be performed sometime in early December. Bob Smyth, a graduate of Covenant College, will direct. More information as to the casts and time will be made available at a later date.

The Drama Club is open to any student who wishes to participate. It not only wants actors, but also people who are interested and experienced in costumes, makeup, construction, production, and lighting.

As Mollenkof says, "The Drama Club is trying to increase its number of productions so that more students will be involved and also so that the whole student body can appreciate the field of drama. Our main goal is to glorify God through the talents He has given us in this area of the fine arts."

Masters is a new member of the office staff. She received various secretarial degrees from Chattanooga State Area Vocational Technical School. Miss McMasters is impressed by the Christian environment here and she enjoys the people she works with.

Covenant's new purchasing agent is Julius Wade. A native Chattanoogan, Mr. Wade has worked for TVA and U.S. Pipe. He is married and has been blessed with five children ranging in age from 6 to 13. "Covenant is a beautiful place. I like the atmosphere and my job," was Mr. Wade's reply when asked his impressions of the college.

Sarah Johnson is a new addition to the library staff. Originally from Newark, New Jersey, Mrs. Johnson is a Covenant graduate. She was employed by the library during her college years under the work-study program. Her husband, Roy, is now a senior at Covenant. Mrs. Johnson expressed her satisfaction in getting to talk to new students and keeping acquaintances with old friends here.

Covenant's new security guard, William Sexton, comes to us from Allendale, South Carolina. He now resides in Chattanooga with his wife Jane and their two children, William, 9, and Melissa, 8. They attend Tennessee Temple Elementary School. Mr. Sexton is looking forward to his duties and feels that the people at Covenant are dedicated.

Since last October, Ed Spurgeon has been performing satisfactory service as the school carpenter. Mr. Spurgeon, his wife and son live in Bryant, Alabama, which is a little over 20 miles from here. Mr. Spurgeon expressed that Covenant "is the best place I've ever worked. The people treat you nice."

Again, the Covenant community welcomes these new members of the staff.

OF COVENANT COLLEGE

October 3rd, 1975

Gentlemen:

Good Morning! We trust that by this time your attention has been called to the giant, cement-filled SCHLITZ "beer can" on the top of Carter Hall. We sincerely hope that this will help to provide you with one of your lighter moments during your stay here, if only that it serves to remind you of the pranks which you used to pull when you were in college.

We continue to pray for you and the school, as you seek the Lord's will for this place.

Cordially yours, in Christ,
